Police tell teens – we need YOU

THERE could soon be a new system for voicing your opinions on the town's policing – and it might be run by a 16-year-old.

Inspector Peter Ferrie of Haverhill Police is finding new ways to engage with the public, and is visiting Samuel Ward Academy to talk to media students.

He is hoping that the students will be able to suggest ways the police could use social media. In the long run, he hopes to find a student who could run an online engagement facility.

Insp Ferrie said: "I have reached out to Samuel Ward and I am going to be invited to one of their media classes. I am going to have a sit-down with them and find out what are the most effective methods of social engagement that the police could use. If you are 16 or 17 you know about a whole range of things other than Facebook and Twitter.

"The eventual aim is to get two or three people from that class to run a digital engagement thing for the Safer Neighbourhood Team (SNT). I am hopeful that there's somebody sitting there in that media class who could do that for us."

Jo Ager, careers leader at Samuel

Ward, is hoping to organise the event before the end of the school term. She said: "I'm sure the students will be happy to be involved."

Insp Ferrie, pictured, will also be meeting with a "steering group" of councillors and residents to come up with ideas for policing in Haverhill. It will include representatives of the public, councillors, and potentially the town clerk.

Town councillor Pat Hanlon, one of the councillors involved in the group, said: "If someone comes to me then I will certainly bring their problem up with the police. That's what I want people to do."

"We have had a few shed breakins in Dovehouse Road and I have been asking to have patrols round."

Insp Ferrie said: "We are meeting up with our steering group in the first week of July. By then I will have met up with the students. We are hopefully going to get a meeting back up and running again."

The town's Safer Neighbourhood Team (SNT) priority-setting meetings were scrapped in March, and since then there has been no public forum for residents to discuss policing.

Insp Ferrie, said: "We have to do something to reach out to the people of Haverhill. It's just working out what that something is."

Breeding like tapirs as zoo celebrates new arrivals

ZOOKEEPERS have been getting used to the patter of tiny feet – and the flutter of tiny wings – as a host of new baby animals are born.

At Linton Zoo, spring has seen the births of baby animals including tortoises and owlets.

A rare Brazilian tapir calf was born on April 11. He was named Tulio and spends his time playing hide and seek with parents Tiana and Thiago.

Three baby Indian star tortoises arrived over the winter. The species is highly prized by collectors, and the parents of the young tortoises were babies themselves when they were seized at customs and brought to the zoo.

New arrivals at the zoo are also taking to the skies, with several baby owls – known as owlets – being born.

Thor and Loki are the names of a pair of Turkmenian eagle owlets hatched this breeding season.

More recently, four great grey owlets were born at the zoo, as well as red-necked wallaby and red kangaroo joeys.

Raising awareness of heart problems

A 20-YEAR-OLD who was diagnosed with a rare heart syndrome last year is raising awareness about his condition.

Dale Hodson, who lives in Ufford Place, Haverhill, was diagnosed with Wolff Parkinson White Syndrome earlier this year.

The condition means his heart sometimes beats abnormally fast. He said: "I will be sitting on the sofa and suddenly I feel like I've run a marathon. If it gets too high I could potentially go into cardiac arrest. I got taken into hospital recently because my heart mimicked the symptoms of a heart attack."

Dale, pictured, has been fundraising for Heart Research UK since his diagnosis. On Sunday he took part in the Subway Helping Hearts 5k, a fun run held on Cambridge's Jesus

HANNAH MIRSKY

Green to raise money for Heart Research UK.

The obstacles in the fun run included a giant loaf of bread and a meatball pit.

Dale said: "It was absolutely fantastic. I'm still aching, just from walking around and going upstairs. I really enjoyed myself."

He enjoyed himself so much, in fact, that he is planning on travelling with the 5k to different locations in the country, to take part in it over and over again.

He said: "It will be worth it. I love charity work. I get a really big buzz out of it."

On top of this, he volunteers to help children with additional needs, and is going to Nepal next year, helping teach children to read and write.

Before he was diagnosed with Wolff Parkinson White, Dale also enjoyed seeking thrills for good causes, including taking part in a charity skydive.

He said: "I was quite an energetic person. It's a shame that I can't do that any more."

However, soon he could be back in action as he is undergoing surgery at Papworth Hospital later this year to correct the problems with his heart.

But that won't stop him trying to raise awareness and funds to help people with the condition.

He said: "At the moment I'm trying to take part in as many charitable events for Heart Research UK as possible. By participating, it will make more people aware. Wolff Parkinson White isn't a well-known condition."

He hopes to take part in a Heart Research UK Three Peaks Challenge in Yorkshire this weekend.

Alleged PCSO attacker dies

A MAN who was accused of assaulting a PCSO in Haverhill High Street has died in hospital.

Stephen Leonard Nash, of Roman Way, Haverhill, was due to stand trial for allegedly assaulting PCSO Kayla Packman in the High Street on September 12 last year.

On October 21 he pleaded not guilty to the charge at Bury St Edmunds Magistrates Court.

But on May 18 this year the charge was withdrawn at the court due to Mr Nash's ill health.

He died at Addenbrooke's Hospital in Cambridge on May 21, aged 60.

Teddy bear market fun

IF you go down to the market this weekend, you're sure of a big surprise.

The Haverhill craft and gift fair has a teddy bear theme this week.

You could win a free mini teddy by finding 10 bears hidden around the market, and a doctor will be on hand to give teddies check-ups.

Fifteen additional stalls will be selling local sausages, Indian food, cakes, old model cars, handmade children's clothes, jewellery and more.

Cllr Alaric Pugh, cabinet member for planning and growth said: "The craft and gifts fair promises to be an exciting day."

Going strong after 60 years

HAPPY DAYS: Bert and Christine Giles, above, and right, on their wedding day in 1955.

IT started at a bus stop in the early 1950s – and more than half a century later, Bert and Christine Giles are celebrating their diamond wedding today.

The couple, who were living in Linton when they first got married in June 1955, now live in the village's Back Road.

When they met, at the Drummer Street bus station in Cambridge, Bert was a builder and Christine was a cook at Cambridge's Chivers factory.

They have one son and fostered a daughter. The couple now have three grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Christine said: "I never thought I'd get this far! I've had a good marriage."

New rules see spike in crime

CRIME figures are up in Haverhill – due to a change in recording guidelines.

The number of crimes of any sort recorded in Haverhill between April 1 and June 7 this year was 462. This is a substantial increase on the three-year average of 336.

The police detection rate in Haverhill has also fallen about 10 per cent to 26 per cent.

Inspector Peter Ferrie of Haverhill Police said that one of the explanations for the change was alterations in the National Crime Recording Standards, the guidelines for police on when to record.

Insp Ferrie said: "An awful lot of things which previously we would not have counted as crimes are now counted. Our figures are likely to seem a lot higher.

"At a primary school, we had one child pushing over another child, and the other child pushed back. We had to stick it on as two crimes. We are never going to investigate those crimes, as the children are both under 10. That explains why we are getting so many crimes and why our detection rate is so low."

There were 107 crimes classed as "violence against a person" between April and June, up from a three-year average of 61.

Another example given by Insp Ferrie was sexual crimes, which have risen from 4 to 16.

He said part of this change was due to "sexting" – sending explicit pictures – between young people now being classed as a crime.

Some types of crime have decreased in spite of the changes in recording guidelines.

Anti-social behaviour is down to 170 incidents from a three-year average of 219, and vehicle crime is down to 29 from an average of 38. There have been no robberies at all from April 1 to June 7, and the expected number was two.

Other crimes to have increased include domestic burglary – up to 15 crimes from 10 – and shoplifting, which has been recorded 51 times, up from an average of 38.

AN online survey has been created for Haverhill residents to share their memories of the Chalkstone Estate.

The survey has been created by the Haverhill History Group in the run-up to an exhibition marking the 50th anniversary of the estate.

To complete the survey you can go to surveymonkey.com/s/5B6FW9Y. Alternatively, visit the Local History Centre, open at the Haverhill Arts Centre from 2pm to 4pm on Thursdays and Fridays, and from 10.30am to 3.30pm on Saturdays.

Vote for your favourite charity

A SUPERMARKET is choosing its charity of the year – and it wants your opinion.

Haverhill Sainsbury's is choosing from three local charities to raise money for over the coming year.

The options are the Smile of Arran Fund, which raises money for The Brain Tumour Charity; St Nicholas Hospice Care, which supports people with life-limiting illnesses and the Befriending Scheme, which supports adults from vulnerable groups.

To vote for the one you'd like to see helped by Sainsbury's, visit sainsburys.co.uk/localcharity before June 28.

Special guest at comedy night

A COMEDY club has secured a very special guest to perform in Haverhill.

The guest's identity is being kept under wraps, but the Monkey Nuts Comedy Club has previously secured performers including Jo Brand, Jon Richardson and Alan Carr.

Tickets are £9 or £8 for members and can be booked via the Box Office 01440 714140 or at www.haverhillartscentre.co.uk.

PROUD: The team receive their certificates.

A thank-you for shop volunteers

VOLUNTEERS at a Haverhill charity shop were recognised for their hard work with certificates last week.

The management staff of the YMCA shop in Haverhill High Street treated their volunteers to Bucks Fizz and sausage rolls as well as the certificates. The event was timed to coincide with National Volunteer Week, which ran from June 1 to June 7.

The volunteers help out with the day-to-day running of the shop including till work, sorting out donations and delivering items in the van. They give anything from a couple of hours a week to full time every day. Eight volunteers were honoured with certificates.

Manager Jill Trowse said about the volunteers: "We couldn't do it without them."

The people receiving awards were Sarah Lomas, Jenni Devlin, Matthew Butler, Ron Turton, Ruth Randall, Oliver Rushmer, Ray Mizon and Gay Rolls.

Gas works will be quicker

A PLANNED seven-week road closure will now last just four weeks – after the public made their voices heard.

Cavendish Road in Clare was due to be closed for seven weeks from mid-July for essential gas works.

But after a meeting at Clare Town Hall on June 2, the National Grid has listened to residents' concerns and altered its plans.

It now plans to use extended hours and additional staff to get the work completed in four weeks rather than seven.

The road will also stay open until July 17, when Stour Valley Community School in Clare breaks up for the summer holidays. The first week of works, July 13 to 17, will now take place under temporary traffic lights. National Grid and Suffolk County Council are liaising with schools which break up later to put arrangements in place for school bus pick-ups in Clare.

Other plans to deal with the disruption include a revised bus timetable and temporary signs to warn HGV drivers about the closure.

National Grid managers have put forward these amended plans to county councillor for Clare, Mary Evans, and St Edmundsbury borough councillor for Clare, Alaric Pugh, as well as council officers.

Andrew Stone, National Grid operations interface manager, said:

"We have listened very carefully to the concerns raised by residents and businesses at the public meeting on June 2.

"We are working closely with the local authorities and elected representatives to ensure we minimise the disruption to local people, while carrying out this essential work safely."

An information evening about the works will take place on Tuesday, June 23 at 7pm at Clare Town Hall.

Cadet scheme is national first

THE country's first ever joint police and fire cadets held their passing out parade on Monday.

The 25 cadets, aged 13 to 17, demonstrated their marching and standing in formation at Haverhill Rovers' New Croft ground in Chalkstone Way.

They were inspected on parade by Suffolk Police and Crime Commissioner Tim Passmore, Chief Constable Gareth Wilson, Chief Fire Officer Mark Hardingham and county councillor Matthew Hicks.

Speaking at the event, Mr Passmore said: "The young people here in Haverhill are the future and we need to do everything we can to support them. We are 100 per cent committed to this."

He went on: "It's about getting our children to look at positive choices. It takes a lot of commitment and hard work. All the life skills that you learn you keep with you for the rest of your life."

HANNAH MIRSKY

Cllr Hicks, who is the county council's cabinet member for environment and public protection, said: "It's important that we look at new and exciting ways to support these schemes, and one obvious way is bringing the blue-light services together."

"This is the first joint cadet scheme in the country, and I am delighted that this scheme supports the aspirations and ambitions of our young people."

The teenagers each received a certificate at the event to mark the end of their first 12 weeks as cadets. Over this time, they have been learning basics about working in the emergency services, such as standing in formation and how police work with pocket notebooks.

They will now go on to work towards more specific qualifications such as the Duke of Edinburgh Bronze Award and a Level 2 BTEC in Public Services. They will also be helping the emergency services out in their work at community events.

The certificates were presented by Mayor of Haverhill Betty McLatchy.

She said: "It's a privilege to be among the people who will be responsible for the safety and wellbeing of the future of Haverhill."

The cadets were dressed in smart police and fire uniforms purchased using money from the locality fund of former county councillor Ann Gower.

Haverhill dad Steve Gavin, whose son Liam was taking part in the parade, said: "Since they got the uniform, that's it. It's all real. I've noticed his confidence improve."

"He's coming home bubbling. They make it fun. He looks forward to getting there."

Have your say on healthcare

HEALTHCARE staff will be visiting Haverhill tomorrow to hear what you think about their services.

Representatives from the West Suffolk Clinical Commissioning Group (WSCCG), a GP-led organisation that runs most local care, will have a stall on the market.

Groups which work with the WSCCG, such as Terence Higgins Trust, Healthwatch Suffolk, Live Well Suffolk, Suffolk Community Healthcare and Suffolk Family Carers, will also be represented at the market stall.

Andrew Eley, WSCCG deputy chief operating officer said: "The most effective way to get people's views on healthcare services in West Suffolk is to talk, face-to-face."

"This is the third year of our road show events, and over the last two years we have been able to gather the views and feedback from hundreds of people, which has proved invaluable as we seek to commission the highest-quality healthcare services."

"People might want to talk about their experiences of the NHS 111 service, give us feedback on treatment they have received or just find out how the clinical commissioning group operates."

"We'll listen to what people tell us and build that into our future plans."

"It's also fantastic that many of our healthcare partners will be joining us, making these events a really good source of advice and information that can help people live healthier lives."

This issue is not just about a few trees...

HAVERHILL Chamber of Commerce, seeking to re-instate an un-necessary road between the proposed Wilsey Park Estate and Coupals Road, saw the pixels but missed the bigger picture.

Having a site meeting and concluding "it's just the removal of a few trees, and it won't affect the Country Park" illustrates it's not only what you see when you put something under a microscope, it's what you don't see that is important.

The chamber did not see that the linking of the Railway walk, with East Town Park, the linking of East Town Park with the Country Park, and the linking of the Country Park with the Great Wood, through the parkland corridor, is of great value to the people of Haverhill. They did not see that a pointless road would cut those links.

They did not see the destruction of a green lane, which we sought to preserve as an asset of community value.

They did not see that a road through an area designated as a local wildlife site would further reduce Haverhill's acknowledged 13-hectare shortfall of nature reserves, against English Nature's accessible green model.

They did not see that the linking footpaths with East Town Park would be severed by the road.

They did not see that "only a few trees" was an integral part of a larger shelter belt, and wildlife corridor.

The chamber did not make a case for the road to the planning inspector at the public enquiry, when he specifically tabled the question as to whether such a road was necessary. Why did they not bring any evidence forward to be tested?

Was it because the county council's AECOM study of traffic flows showed only 7.1% of traffic flows from the new estate would be in the road's south-easterly direction, with the vast majority of this percentage using the Chalkstone way exit from the estate? There are no supermarkets, schools, doctors or hospitals in that direction. The only households who might find their route shortened by this road are those in the smaller phase 3 of the new estate, and if they are going to work in Haverhill they will come back to Chalkstone Way at the junction with Coupals Road (only 360 yards shorter from phase 3's mid-point, or less than a minute's travel by car at 20mph). Hardly excessive travel time, as the chamber claims!

UNDER THREAT: The woodland walk linking East Town Park and the Country Park

Come on Chamber, is that really worth the cost of a new road, which you are looking for the demolition and is quoted as saying 'that this a good news and key to the town centre masterplan', but hang on a minute – isn't the town centre masterplan based on public consultation? Surely, we should be the ones deciding whether further destruction of our old buildings is good news for our town.

The residents of Ladygate made strong representations why they objected to Havebury's plans to demolish their garages and replace them with flats, not NIMBYism but perfectly sound and valid reasons why the flats should not be built, yet the plans have been approved. The residents were not listened to, they were ignored. I expect that the residents of Parkside, who also objected to Havebury's plans, will find that their garages will be replaced with flats next year.

Ian Johnson

Haverhill

Visions for our town are just a mirage

THERE was a headline in last week's Weekly News telling us 'Have your say on town centre now', and went on to remind us about the town centre masterplan.

Ironically, in the report immediately opposite we were told that the plan to demolish the north light sewing sheds on the Chantry Mill site had been agreed, even though the decision regarding the site was meant to have been deferred until September. The people of Haverhill have been complaining for years about the destruction of our town's heritage. Why is no one listening to us? Why are we being ignored? Even Sarah Howard from One Haverhill agrees with the demolition and is quoted as saying 'that this a good news and key to the town centre masterplan', but hang on a minute – isn't the town centre masterplan based on public consultation? Surely, we should be the ones deciding whether further destruction of our old buildings is good news for our town.

The residents of Ladygate made strong representations why they objected to Havebury's plans to demolish their garages and replace them with flats, not NIMBYism but perfectly sound and valid reasons why the flats should not be built, yet the plans have been approved. The residents were not listened to, they were ignored. I expect that the residents of Parkside, who also objected to Havebury's plans, will find that their garages will be replaced with flats next year.

We can shout it from the rooftops that we need the appropriate infrastructure before any more housing is built. Yell through giant megaphones that our remaining heritage shouldn't be demolished or left to fall apart. Demonstrate on the streets that we need a youth centre for our young people, and let's not mention a cottage hospital, an upgrade to the A1307, a railway or any of the amenities which a town with a population of 30,000 needs, because ultimately, we will we only get what St Edmundsbury Borough Council and Suffolk County Council say we can have, and they don't listen to us, our views are ignored.

That's why all the 'visions' for our town, which we're paying for, will prove to be nothing but one big mirage.

Armed policeman kept our Owls entertained

IN June, Robert Burridge regaled the Haverhill Owls WI with tales of his work as an armed police officer in London.

He shared his memories of guarding royalty and politicians during his long career, in particular Princess Diana and her boys on the school run. Florists in London were sold out of flowers for a week after her death was announced and he remembers the awful silence when her coffin appeared on the streets. Primarily his work involved the foreign embassies which could be very boring. One of his colleagues on duty outside Clarence House in the pouring rain was rewarded with a drink sent out by the Queen Mother, who had spotted his drenched figure on her way in. However, another was yelled at from a window at Buckingham Palace by a senior male royal for keeping him awake by walking on the noisy gravel path below.

The Owls will be having a stall at the Cleves Place Open Day on Friday June 19, so why not come along and meet us there?

The Casebook of Sherlock Holmes, East Town Park, Friday June 12

By Chris James

THERE is a fine tradition of outdoor theatre in Haverhill's East Town Park, but Chapterhouse Theatre Company's production of The Casebook of Sherlock Holmes was a particularly stylish treat. Tightly constructed with stylish, snappy dialogue, this was close to the spirit of the original.

The soundtrack of twittering birds made for an especially evocative setting.

Holmes and Watson are summoned to a nunnery to investigate the mysterious Eye of God, an ancient talisman that has been protected within the nunnery for centuries. Holmes was acted with some aplomb, both masterful and eccentric, capturing his infuriating brilliance. Watson was equally good, unusually robust, and a little less deferential than in the original stories.

Both actors were magnificent speakers. The supporting cast were excellent too; the formidable head of the convent has a wholesome, matronly authority. Brother Benjamin (a beekeeper, Holmes fans!) had a superb energy and more than held his own against the two male leads.

There was a slight uncertainty of tone. Like the books, the play is essentially a melodrama and the company resisted the urge to play it too broad. There were moments of mild slapstick however, which threatened to take it into more comic territory but this was by no means a send-up.

All the usual Holmesian tropes were in place, including Sherlock in disguise, the Webley revolver and some very natty tailoring: all tweeds and wing collars. The smoking was toned down for more enlightened times although, amusingly, some herbal cigarettes played an unusually important part in the plot.

A light shower during the second half (cue a spray of floral umbrellas) only served to add atmosphere to this compelling production. Gloriously old-fashioned outdoor entertainment for ages 12 to 112.

School: 'We need extra classrooms'

A FREE school is so oversubscribed it is applying to put up classrooms in the playground – less than five years after it opened.

Stour Valley Community School, in the village of Clare, submitted a planning application in late May to put up temporary classrooms in the playground.

Headteacher Christine Inchley said: "We have been oversubscribed for the last two years and the school is proving far more popular than we ever expected.

"This is putting pressure on teaching spaces so to avoid turning any students away we have applied for planning permission to install four modular classrooms."

The school had a published admissions capacity of 115 for this year's Year 7 intake, but it was named as a school of choice on more than 200 applications, according to the school office.

The school, which occupies the site of a former middle school, had just 180 pupils when it opened in 2011. It is preparing to welcome

HANNAH MIRSKY

575 pupils this autumn.

The planning application states that the temporary classrooms are needed by September.

The application will go before the St Edmundsbury Borough Council development control committee for approval before the classroom buildings can be put up. Last year, the council granted planning permission to the school for a proposed five-classroom humanities block.

Oversubscription is an ongoing issue in Haverhill. In April this year, as parents applied for primary school places, the borough council sent headteachers in the town an email asking if they were able to accommodate extra pupils to meet demand.

Across Suffolk this year, 7,892 pupils applied for just 6,804 Year 7 school places available in September, according to the county council.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Schoolchildren create 'museum' dedicated to old technology

THE pupils of Haverhill's New Cangle Primary School are creating a museum of technology – and you can come and visit it.

The exhibition, which takes place on Wednesday, July 1 at the Haverhill Arts Centre, will include poetry, presentations and guided explanations from the Year 6 pupils.

The exhibition is the culmination of a learning project on "How Technology has Shrunken the World", and the New Cangle community have got involved by lending "old technology" to the pupils.

The museum will be open from 10am to 2pm, and entry is free, although donations are welcome.

Children dress up to raise cash

THE staff and children of a pre-school are raising money to create a new garden area.

Happy Faces Pre-School in Colne Valley Road have already raised £300 towards the outdoor area, including a new play surface and other resources.

They raised the funds by holding a sponsored "Dress Up as a Creature" day, involving activities such as looking for animals and eating a "Gruffalo crumble".

Pre-school manager Diana Andre said: "A new garden area will add to our existing excellent provision and create more opportunities for learning and discovery."

The pre-school is also holding a fundraising table-top sale on July 18 from 10am to noon.

Tables are £8 and can be booked by calling Diana on 01440 762515.

You can donate by visiting fundwider.com/068099.

From Haverhill ...to Mercury!

A HAVERHILL company is helping to create satellites for an international space mission.

The BepiColombo mission is a joint European Space Agency and Japan Aerospace Exploration Agency programme which will send spacecraft to Mercury, the closest planet to the sun.

Keronite, based on Haverhill's Holland Road industrial estate, has been creating coatings for the major flight parts of the mission's spacecraft.

Vice president of Keronite Professor Suman Shrestha said: "The BepiColombo mission is scheduled to launch in 2017, arriving at Mercury in 2024."

"When it arrives, it will need to endure temperatures in excess of 350C, gathering data for at least one year, if not two.

HANNAH MIRSKY

"The materials involved therefore not only need to be able to withstand those temperatures themselves but also control the operating environment for other technologies on board. This is where Keronite comes in."

The company's "white" coating emits a lot of heat without absorbing much.

This will help to control the temperature of the satellite, protecting the flight parts and providing the best environment for the technology on board.

The coating will also help to protect the spacecraft from other things that could damage it, such as corrosion and UV radiation.

Chief executive of Keronite Matt Hamblin said the coating was "truly at the cutting edge of space technology."

The coatings can be adapted for use on the different materials used to build the spacecraft.

Prof Shrestha said: "The challenge lies in testing as each variant of the coating needs to be certified in flight tests before it can be used for programmes such as the BepiColombo mission."

According to the European Space Agency, the aims of the BepiColombo mission are to investigate the origin of Mercury and study the planet's form and atmosphere.

The are also hoping to conduct a test of Albert Einstein's theory of general relativity.

The three spacecraft involved will carry sophisticated instruments to help monitor the planet. These will include cameras, spectrometers and particle analysers.

Bundle launched to help smokers quit

A NEW kit has been launched to give smokers the chance to quit by themselves.

The 'My Quit Suffolk' bundle includes a manual, wall planner and smartphone app.

The app tells the quitter how much money they have saved and how many days they have gone without smoking.

The wall planner helps track progress, while the self-help manual guides the ex-smoker through the stages of quitting and the health benefits it brings.

The kit has been created by Live Well Suffolk, a service which promotes healthy lifestyles in the county.

Steven Lee-Foster, director of Live Well Suffolk, said: "We know that the way in which people want to stop smoking is changing and some people feel more comfortable quitting on their own.

"It's therefore really important for us to do everything we can to maximise their chances of success."

To order a 'My Quit Suffolk' bundle, phone 01473 229292 or request a pack online at livewellsuffolk.org.uk/myquit.

Businesswoman gets MBE from the Queen

A HAVERHILL businesswoman will receive an MBE from the Queen this year.

Sarah Howard, chairman of ONE Haverhill, featured on the list of the Queen's Birthday honours released on Friday.

At some point over the next seven months she will be invited to either Windsor Castle or Buckingham Palace to receive the honour.

Sarah is being honoured for her services to the community in Haverhill.

She runs a software company called Sarand, and as well as her role representing business on ONE Haverhill, she has been chairman of the Haverhill Chamber of Commerce and is now president of the Suffolk Chamber of Commerce.

She is also chairman of Abbeycroft Leisure, which runs the Haverhill Leisure Centre.

Sarah said: "I feel very honoured and humbled to have been awarded an MBE in the Queen's

HANNAH MIRSKY

Birthday Honours list.

"I think it is very important to give back to your local community and I have been privileged and fortunate to work with many wonderful people in Haverhill on projects to help the town, including ONE Haverhill, Abbeycroft Leisure and Haverhill and Suffolk Chambers of Commerce.

"It is only through the help and support of people working together that we can achieve more for our town. For ONE Haverhill, for example, we have been able to make much progress in the last three years.

"I believe this award is recognition of the success of that team effort. However, the greatest award is watching a growing number of apprentices who are steadily building confidence in the youth of Haverhill and offer great hope for the future of our town."

HONOURED: Sarah Howard, chairman of one Haverhill, will pick up her MBE at Buckingham Palace or Windsor Castle.

Team lines up beside footy legend for charity

TOWN employees took part in a charity football competition alongside Arsenal legend Ian Wright last week.

Members of staff from Havebury Housing, which has a branch and owns property in Haverhill, headed to Powerleague in London's Docklands on Thursday, June 11, for a five-a-side competition.

The "Footy4Foodbanks" competition, in support of foodbank charity the Trussell Trust, aimed to raise £15,000 for the cause.

Ian Wright, in his role as a grassroots sports ambassador, took all 24 teams taking part through their paces as a warm-up before the competition began.

Paul Edwards, director of resources at Havebury, added: "Footy for Food is an excellent initiative which raises vital funds for The Trussell Trust to provide a network of foodbanks across the UK."

The event was organised by Housing Association Poplar HARCA, which manages homes and runs community events in London's Tower Hamlets.

The Trussell Trust fed 913,138 last year, 330,205 of whom were children.

TEENAGERS from Suffolk are fundraising so they can attend a mental health conference in Canada this October.

The young people are part of a group of 16 members of the Norfolk and Suffolk NHS Foundation Trust youth councils.

They are aiming to raise £36,000 to attend the International Association for Youth Mental Health conference in Montreal, after previously attending one in 2013 in Brighton.

If they raise the money they will work with local artists to create a short film about mental health featuring puppet versions of themselves, which they will show at the conference.

A FREE talk is being held on Saturday about riot and rebellion in Suffolk's countryside.

The event will take place at the Burton Centre in Camps Road from 11am.

Could YOU perform at town open-mic night?

GIVE IT A GO: George Self performing at the open-mic night he organises at the Woolpack in Haverhill

THERE'S an almost-the-end-of-the-week buzz at the Woolpack on a Thursday night; chilled-out chatter as pubgoers wind down.

This is the setting for Big G's open-mic night, a music evening run by local musician George Self.

On June 11, the theme was REM, and local musicians got up in front of a friendly crowd to try out the band's songs.

Although each fortnightly evening has a theme – sometimes a band, sometimes a broader concept like "sun" or "space" – there's plenty of variation.

One Ed Sheeran number which was played last Thursday had the audience singing along.

George, a big man with a soft voice who plays rock-inspired tunes, has been running the night since late last year, and now he's looking for more performers to get involved.

"It would be nice to get the news out there," he said on Thursday. "You haven't got people coming in with big heads, and I think that's what people are scared of."

Performer Malcolm

HANNAH MIRSKY

Goldsmith, who lives on the Chalkstone Estate and has been playing music for more than 20 years, would also like to see more performers.

He said: "I'd tell people to get down here and give it a go. You don't necessarily have to play a guitar. Open-mic night is for anything at all. You could get up there and tell a joke."

"But I think there's a lot of front-room guitarists who might like to do something like this."

"I'd never done anything like this before. Occasionally you mess up, but that's OK because not everyone's watching you all the time."

"I think there's a lot of talent in the town, probably more than you think."

To find out more or get in touch, search for "Big G's Open Mic Night" on Facebook.

Alternatively, just turn up if you'd like to play, at the Woolpack in Queen Street from 8.30pm every other Thursday.

The next evening will be on June 25.

the GUIDE

Stuart Lee

Stewart Lee: A Room with a Stew, Cambridge Corn Exchange, Thursday June 19 at 8pm. SOLD OUT

ANTI-populist comedian Stuart Lee is bringing his new show, A Room With A Stew, to the Cambridge Corn Exchange in an effort to share material in preparation for his next BBC2 series, Stewart Lee's Comedy Vehicle.

The 47-year-old from Shropshire writes funny stuff for TV, magazines, radio and himself, and sure knows how to divide a crowd. Here we balance out his best and worst moments.

BEST

■ His double act, Lee and Herring, with fellow comedian Richard Herring made him a household name

■ Working on BBC Radio 4 saw him get involved with the early stages of Alan Partridge (before he got kicked off the team)

■ He helped boost the careers of Noel Fielding and Julian Barratt with The Night Boosh

■ He co-wrote (with Richard Thomas) the major musical satire, Jerry Springer: The Opera

■ He's very funny if you like call backs and nastiness. In 2009 The Times even named him the "face of the decade"

WORST

■ He doesn't suffer fools, even if those 'fools' are paying to see him. In 2013 a Telegraph reviewer left one of Lee's gigs after getting sick of the comedian's audience directed bile, writing: "If Lee had a shred of interest or insight into the working lives of other people, he'd realise that those who give up an evening at the end of a week to see him deserve his thanks not his toxic scorn."

■ Lee has a habit of thinking people are out there stealing ideas off him and plagiarising his jokes. In fact, he's even got a "Plagiarist's Corner" on his website – he's accused Ricky Gervais, Patrick Kielty, Louis C.K. and Jack Whitehall of ripping him off. We're not convinced.

■ He upset Christians the world over with Jerry Springer: The Opera. There were even pamphlets, private prosecutions and mini-protests!

It's always great to receive happy feedback, thanks Sara!

■ Treat yourself to some 'me' time when THE YORUBA WOMEN CHOIR from Nigeria performs a mixture of secular and non-secular songs to lift your spirit and soothe your soul tomorrow at 7.30pm. The soulful harmonies of the 10 singers and the infectious rhythms of the seven-piece band create an uplifting musical experience that will be difficult to forget!

Countdown to new Fiat 500

ON July 4 1957 the Fiat was launched to the Italian public.

Developed by legendary engineer Dante Giacosa, the Fiat 500 was designed to be as affordable to buy and run as possible. It was small, not necessarily to avoid traffic congestion but because metal was expensive and the more of it that was used, the more weight the car gained and the more performance and fuel was needed to propel the car along.

It was this kind of pragmatism which led to the adoption of a full-length canvas roof on early models (lighter and less expensive to produce) and also in the interests of costs and packaging, a rear-mounted, air-cooled, two-cylinder 479cc engine was chosen. Producing just 13bhp, the 470kg Fiat 500 was capable of just over 50mph but, more importantly, it was extremely fuel efficient and required only basic maintenance.

At a time when the average Italian factory worker earned no more than 50,000 Lire per month the Fiat 500 cost 490,000 Lire when it went on sale, making it a considerable financial undertaking even with Fiat's 20,000 Lire per month repayment programme. However that didn't prevent the Fiat 500 being a massive sales success, amassing more than 3.6 million sales over its 18-year life cycle.

The Fiat 500 evolved into the Fiat 126, which was replaced by the FIAT Cinquecento and Seicento city cars - all brilliantly packaged, fun to drive and commercially successful in their own right - but the original 500 never disappeared from view.

It was clear that the FIAT 500 had a special place in the public's hearts and minds, and so on July 4 2007 the Fiat 500 was reborn - true to the philosophy of the iconic 1957 car. The engine might have moved to the front and it may have had seven airbags and Blue&Me connectivity but its design was a perfectly-executed homage to the original car.

Marketed in 100 countries and with more than 1.5 million sales globally (UK sales will likely top quarter of a million in total by the end of the year) the next chapter in the Fiat 500 story is about to begin.

On July 4, Fiat will unveil the new Fiat 500 for the first time. No other information regarding this new model is available at this time.

Warner is ace in the Charity pack

> Golf

JAKE Warner landed a Vauxhall Corsa at the Haverhill Golf Club Charity Day.

With a par three challenge on all par threes as part of the competition, and a range of prizes on offer, Warner scooped the car – supplied by Drive Vauxhall – with a hole-in-one on the par three 202-yard 12th hole, using a three wood.

Past seniors captain, Keith McCallum witnessed Warner's spectacular tee shot which landed on the green, rolled up to the hole and dropped in, much to McCallum's delight and that of Warner, who once he realised, was cheering and jumping up and down on the tee with the rest of his team.

Twenty-three teams took part in the team of four event, with the best two scores from four counting to the total.

In the competition handicap team event, The Grumpies of Dave Cohen, Richard Newman, John Vale and Conor O'Brien were victorious with 94 points.

Buildbase – of Matt Farlie, Russell Gitty, Warner and Neil Farlie – were second with 91, and The Last Stand of Trevor Broomfield, Roger Hartley, Richard Parker and Dave Smith were third with 91.

Winning the non-competition handicap team prize were Willow Mizons' Peter Bowers, Dominic Bowers, Vaughan Mizon and Dale Mizon with 77 points.

Peter Bowers won the first prize in the raffle, a 32" Panasonic Smart TV, which was donated by Chapman & Son, who have continued to support the charity day by supplying the main prizes for the past 12 years.

An auction of green fee vouchers helped raise £760, as an overall amount of £2,000 was raised for St Nicholas Hospice and the National Autistic Society.

Andy Fish earned victory in the President's Putter with nett 69.

Glen Hughes was the runner-up with 70, beating Ciaran Brennan on countback as 66 players contested the competition.

Haverhill juniors claimed the team prize at the Southwold Open.

James Iron scored 27 points, Josh Hulyer earned 41 and Alice Iron 33 to give them an overall total of 101.

Bury St Edmunds' Georgia Parker was the individual winner with 43, two ahead of Joshua Goulton and Hulyer.

Haverhill club professional Paul

Wilby said: "What a fantastic result for our junior section.

"I have coached all three juniors over the last few years on our academy programme, with Alice and James now in the elite squad, soon to be joined by Josh when he gets his handicap down to 12.

"Congratulations to all three of them".

Linda Alexander was the winner of the June Smith Silver Salver with 36 points, three clear of Pauline Calmet, who beat Ann Waters to second on countback.

> Karate

Dan delight: (Left to right) Lee McCormack, Carne Willsher and Darran Kerry all recently passed black belt grading exams to move up to their next level. The Chalkstone Karate Club members had to perform hundreds of techniques and demonstrate their ability to fight. Kerry and McCormack both moved up to second dan, with Willsher moving up to third dan.
